Fair Housing Act

- Landlords must make reasonable accommodations to permit an individual with a disability to use, own, and live with a Service Animal and/or Emotional Support Animal
- For Emotional Support Animals, landlord has the right to ask for documentation from physician, psychiatrist, social worker, or other mental health provider stating the animal provides support which mitigates at least one symptom
- Landlords cannot ask tenant to pay deposit, fee, or surcharge for having a Service Animal or Emotional Support Animal
- Cannot inquire about the extent of the disability or ask for detailed medical records

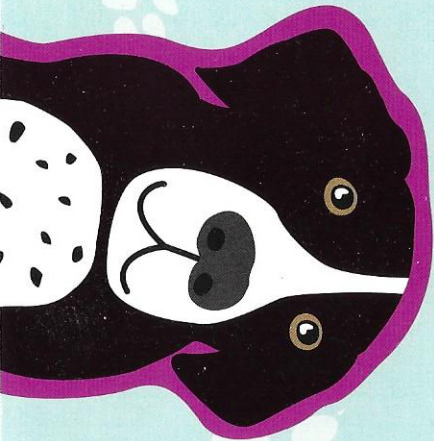

Reference the complete Fair Housing Act for all requirements.

Register My Service Animal, LLC

Take your pet everywhere. We register all animals including dogs, cats, horses, pigs, birds, etc.

Service Animals and Emotional Support Animals are allowed in pet restricted housing and can travel on an airline free. Check with the airline for specifics.

Emotional Support Animals do not require any specific training other than good social skills. Service Animals need to perform a task and meet public access standards. Requirements are on website.
